There once lived a clever man with three sons. He loved them very much, but he was sorry that they often quarrelled. One day he wanted to teach them a lesson. He showed his sons a bundle of sticks and asked them to break the bundle in half. The youngest son put the bundle across his knee but couldn't break it. The middle son put the sticks on the ground and wanted to break them with his hands. The oldest son took the ends of the bundle in each hand and tried to split it in half in front of him, but also with no result. Then their father untied the bundle and gave one stick to each son. The sons easily broke the sticks in half. "My sons", said the wise father, "each of you alone is as weak as one of these sticks. But if you all stand together, nobody will be able to break you".
